Max Stern—A Shining Star

Close friends of Max Stern expressed feelings of disbelief at the time of his death. It seemed, they said, as if a man of his stature could never die. For three and a half years we, the class of 1983, passed through the doors of STERN college; although we all recognized the magnitude of his generosity, very few of us understood that there was a face that belonged to the name. His death in May 1982, shocked the Yeshiva University community, but Stern students were even more profoundly effected. We began to understand that he was the impelling force which opened the doors of our education. Max Stern had a dream; he envisioned a place where women could receive both a Jewish and a secular education. There were few Jewish leaders who recognized this need as early as he did, and even fewer were willing to meet the challenge and take action, but Max Stern was not only a dreamer, he was a creator, a man of integrity and kindness.

Max Stern not only supplied the means for women to learn how to be good Jews, but he was also an example to learn from. He loved all people and the list of both groups and individuals whom he helped financially exemplifies his diversity.

Despite the fact that SCW is only one of many causes to which the Stern family has contributed, we feel special. Mr. Stern was not only the benefactor of Stern College for Women, but he was also our school patriarch. When talking about Stern College, he would often refer to the student body as "my girls", and he would "shep nachas" when he heard of Stern women who upon returning to their communities, began to teach others about Judaism.

The college has advanced in leaps and bounds. Stern women are becoming nurses, artists, lawyers, and educators. We have gone beyond Max Stern's original dreams, but his initial vision remains as the key which was the impetus for our accomplishments.

We, the class of 1983, dedicate our yearbook to Max Stern. His efforts have enabled us to gain a unique type of knowledge. We have acquired the means to attempt the fusion of our Jewish and secular worlds. As graduates of Stern College for Women, we will all carry on Max Stern's name whenever we mention our alma mater. Success in our future endeavors will pay tribute to his memory and will exhibit our appreciation for his dreams.

על כל אלה. על כל אלה...

For all these things . . . As the college experience draws to a close, one often feels the need to evaluate, the experiences and emotions which shaped these impressionable years. It begins to seem as if in four years the whole world changed. Though it is true that our macrocosm has been altered somewhat, to quote Thoreau, "Things do not change. We change". The classics we have read and the museums we have discovered are not new; our perspectives are. These new outlooks will aid us in our attempts to synthesize all facets of our education. We have been exposed to different ideas and the results are a wide range of priorities. Jerusalem is where our minds and hearts lie, but we have spent the last few years on 34th street. The dichotomy emerges when we are forced to decide between the two. Should we attend a rally for Israel's safety or go to the job interview which is the chance of a lifetime?

We are leaving Stern affected by the changes which evolved in both our macrocosm and microcosm. Whether positive or negative they have all contributed to our growth and development and will remain as living memories within us—the milestones of our college years.

Please watch for me . . . As we survey the historical events of our heritage we find that we are shaped by the actions of our oncestors. How a people strived with such determination to preserve the integrity of the Torah, notwithstanding any hardships, is a fear beyond belief. Till this day we have been fortunately blessed with pious scholars who instill within us this need to safeguard the Torah which ultimately protects the people of Israel. As has been said by one of our sages: "More than the Jews have protected the Torah, the Torah has protected the Jews. The pictures above are demonstrative of the various ways in which God has given us direction. At the Stern dormitory, we have guards around the clock to ensure our safety against any "prowlers". We have directional signals on every streer corner which prevent us from going the wrong way. On a more important, spiritual, level we have scholars who expound words of Torah to ensure that we do not stray from the right path. What we are today is merely the past deeply rooted within us, and these values must be guarded in order for us to advance and achieve new heights.

The honey and the thorns . . . Honey and thorns represent the extremes of life, while both emanate from natural sources. Honey is sweet and pleasant; thorns rip at our very being and are often obstacles in our paths. Our lives are filled with both. Nuclear activity is destroying our ecological environment while it is also achieving great scientific discoveries. Nature itself is full of beauty as well as harmful thorns. New York City has been a place where we have reaped the fruits of knowledge, and enjoyed pleasant culture experiences, while it has also been the site of demonstrations. Lastly, there is Jerusalem, the city which received nine tenths of the world's beauty, but yet is one of the major sore points of contention in Arab-Israeli relations.

The bitter and the sweet. . . For some, life is a bitter pill, while for others it is "a piece of cake", and for most life is a combination of both. We have experienced the feelings of exaltation when peace seems imminent, and horror when those grandiose plans seem to have failed miserably. Life is full of lows and highs, and tears and laughter. We may not always be pleased with the events of the past, but the future remains unformed and awaits our new ideas.

MESSAGES

In Memory Of

Dr. David Mirsky

President for Academic Affairs.

Such diverse contributions as Dr. Mirsky made to education in the secular as well as the Jewish world are rare. He had created and developed numerous educational radio and television series over the last 20 years, and had served in such capacities as Secretary of the Council of Higher Education Institutions of New York, Executive board member of the American Association for Jewish Education, evaluator for Middle States Association, to name but just a few of his professional associations.

Dr. Mirsky had also been involved in writing and publishing numerous articles and papers for both English and Hebrew publications.

Dr. Mirsky received his B.A. from Yeshiva College in 1942 and was ordained at RIETS in 1945. He pursued his graduate studies in English and Hebrew literature at Columbia, NYU, and at the Oxford Center for post graduate studies in England as a scholar-in-residence.

Dr. Mirsky was a 7th generation Jerusalemite, born in that city in 1921. He will truly be missed.

Dr. David Mirsky will always be remembered at Stern College.

Dr. Mirsky was dean of Stern from 1968 to 1975. He first joined the YU faculty in 1948. In 1953 he was named Assistant Professor of Hebrew and English in 1962, and professor of English in 1966. He served as Dean of Admissions from 1963-1968. Following his term as SCW dean, he was appointed Acting Vice

Norman Lamm President

To The Graduates of Stern College for Women:

I am pleased to offer my warmest congratulations and Mazal Tov wishes to students of the class of 1983.

I trust that the years you spent with us have been happy and informative ones. Of all schools of Yeshiva University, Stern College has probably made the most significant educational advances these past several years. You are fortunate that you were here to benefit from them.

I hope and pray that as you build your families, pursue your vocations or avocations, and assert leadership in the community, you will always remember fondly your education, teachers, and fellow students at Stern.

May the devoted efforts of the faculty in educating you in both Torah and Madda be fully justified by the success you will achieve in bringing many others into the felicitous circle of Torah.

Cordially yours,

Norman Lamm
President

KAREN BACON
DEAN

Institutions with long histories and short memories often subscribe to the attitude that there is little comfort in change. By contrast, Stern College, a youth among schools, with a keen memory born out of an awareness of its mission, has made change one of its hallmarks. This has been manifest from the extraordinary moment in 1954 when the college was created through the revolutionary vision and generosity of Mr. Max Stern (a"n), to the day four years ago when the faculty adopted a new Core Curriculum in the Jewish Studies. We—the students, faculty, alumnae and administration, have not shied away from debating the value of new directions in education and new standards for personal development. These debates have led to majors in computer sciences and accounting, revised graduation requirements which place more emphasis on the individual's active choice of courses, expanded internship opportunities in the business world, and new administrative procedures of which the most notable example is on-line computer registration. Student leaders in the Student Council, the Senate, the Academic Standards and Curriculum Committees have had major roles in affecting these changes. This model of shared leadership is a source of pride and gratification to our college community, and, we believe, prepares our graduates well for the give and take required for creative leadership roles in the future. You, the graduates of 1983 have received your education in this dynamic environment.

But, not all change is heartening. This last year we lost the builder and stalwart supporter of Stern College for Women, the man whose constant caring could be felt in every corner of our home—Mr. Max Stern. I am told that even during his business trips out of town or out of the country, Mr. Stern would call in daily to see if his help was needed at the College or at the University. May his love of learning and his personal integrity remain forever our inspiration.

On behalf of the faculty and staff of Stern College for Women, I wish you much success. May you go from strength to strength in all your undertakings.

ETHEL ORLIAN ASSISTANT DEAN

Congratulations and sincerest wishes for a bright future to each of you. It must be with mixed emotions that you approach graduation from Stern College. The regret of leaving a secure environment and the anxiety of approaching the unknown, must mingle with the excitement of forging ahead to advance career goals and establish roots within Jewish communities. You may feel assured and confident that you have received the best of preparations for what lies ahead.

By choosing Stern College you have made a statement as to the priorities that will guide you in establishing future lifestyles. You have elected to become members of a community committed to our people and its heritage. You will face many a challenge but rise to the occasion with strength as you maintain respect for G-d, for self and for fellow man.

It is to meet these challenges that, at Stern, painstaking efforts have been made to encourage you to develop intellectually and spiritually. The desire to understand, to acquire knowledge and to reason, with mankind as the beneficiary, should ever be a goal as you stride forward. As you continue to learn and to grow, may your expanding body of knowledge enhance your understanding of G-d and all that He created, for this is the meaning of Torah U'Mada.

To'alehah V'Tizlachna!

Ethel Orlian

YOCHEDVED GRUNBERGER EDITOR

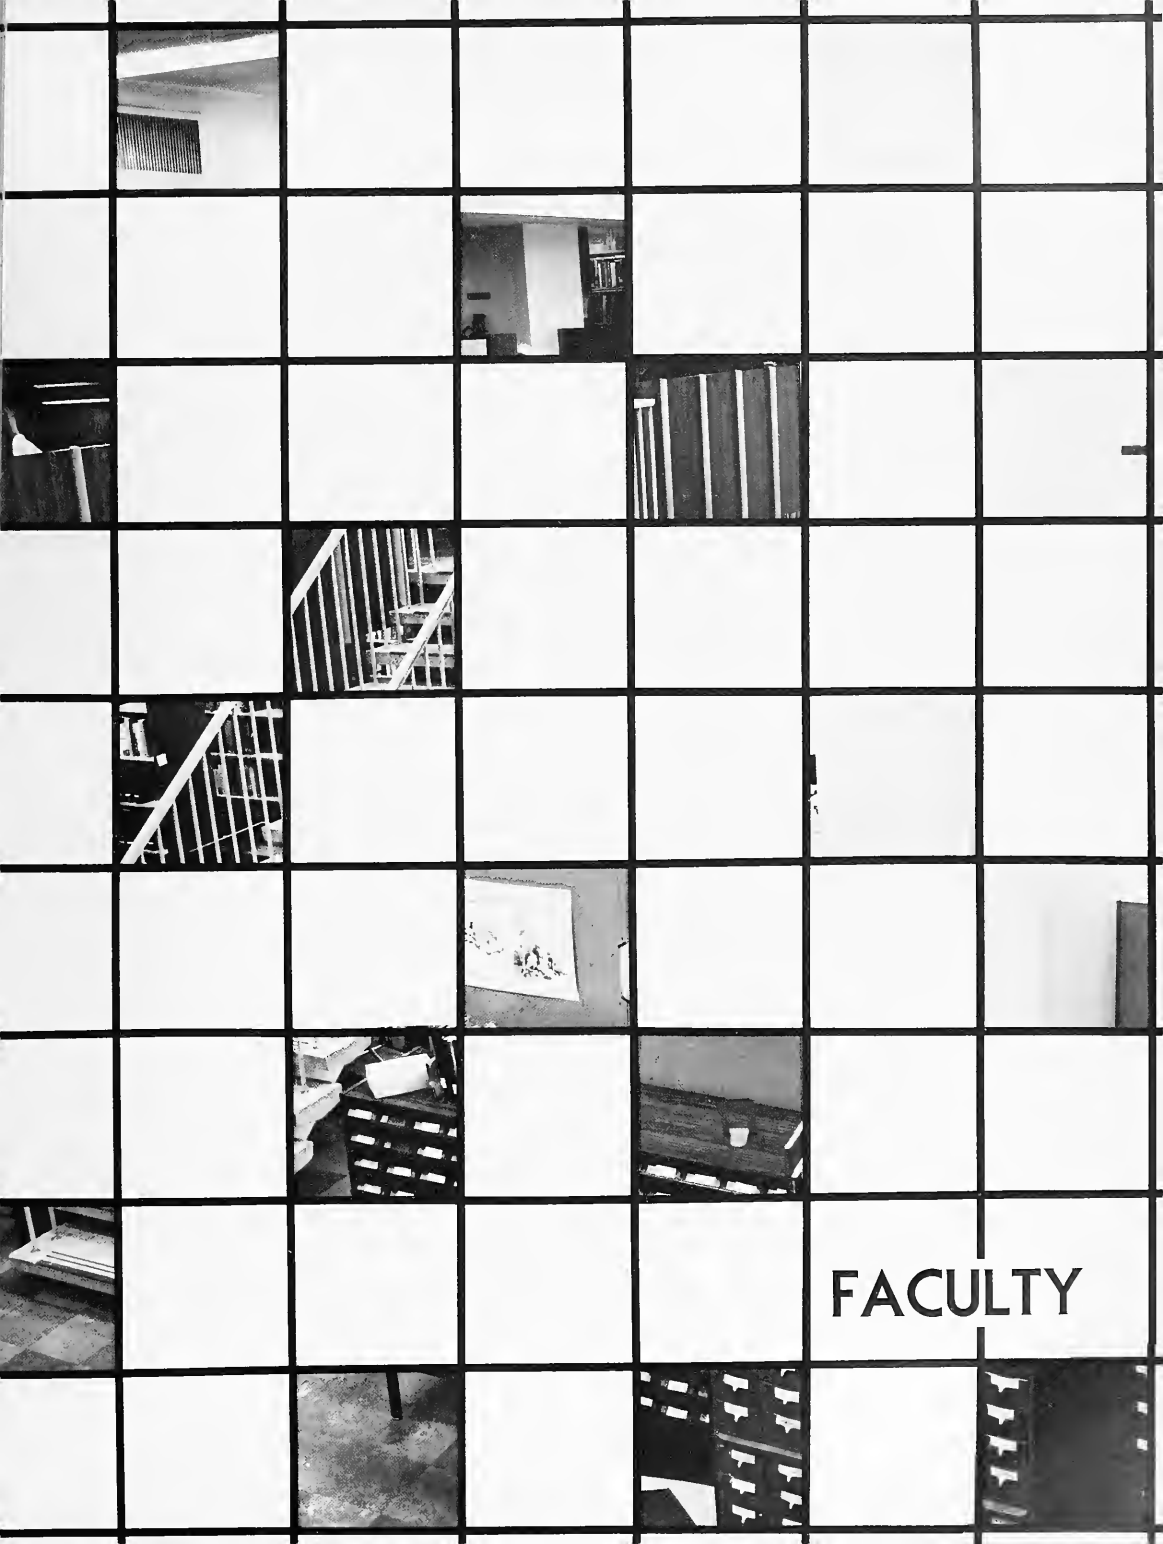

To my fellow Graduates:

Senior year evokes bittersweet feelings. Four years of preparation for the big world have flown by, and now it is time to emerge from our familiar environment and accomplish the goals for which we have prepared. We, the class of 1983, are luckier than previous graduating classes. It was during our college years that the faculty began to recognize the new needs of Jewish women, and the revised curriculum reflects this recognition.

Although we initially fought the Jewish Studies Core program, we now realize how beneficial it is. The variety of courses has given us the opportunity to study Judaica as equally in-depth as secular studies; requirement changes have allowed us to diversify our course of study. Both changes have upgraded our education and enabled us to encounter many areas of learning.

The question is: "Where do we go from here?" When asked what he thought the purpose of study was, George Herbert Palmer replied: "That's what education means—to be able to do what you've never done before." We are an amazing bunch of women; we will be nurses, artist, writers, accountants, teachers, and soon-to-be doctors, lawyers, historians, etc.—the opportunities are limitless. Finally the Jewish community has begun to appreciate the tension we confront when attempting to synthesize career goals and Jewish values. The job is not easy, but we have been prepared to meet the challenge. With Sincere Wishes for a Bright Future,

Yocheved Grunberger

To Parents so special;

I've got your picture in my wallet and some pictures in my mind. Where has all the time gone?!!

You always took care of the mounting phone bills, plane tickets, and tuitions. Love never dies although at times it fades before the pressing cares of daily life. Aside from my costly education which has taken me across the globe, you've given me something more precious than the diploma for which we've worked so hard. I'm speaking of your priceless love, patience, and understanding.

It's been a long haul, but through it all you've taught me, that I'm young enough to hope, old enough to know,
and wise enough to try.

All my Love and Respect
Peggy

Dearest
